Joe Clark Innovation Lab

at National Aviation Hall of Fame

Inspiring young learners to become the next generation of aerospace innovators became a strategic priority for the National Aviation Hall of Fame in 2019.

Since then, we have created an elementary school STEM curriculum that has reached over 6,000 classrooms, produced a video series featuring the stories of aerospace professionals, and built an immersive, multipurpose theater. The latest jewel in our crown is the Joe Clark Innovation Lab, a $1.2 million, 1,600-square-foot hub for students, visitors, and aviation enthusiasts to delve into the world of aerospace.

The energy surrounding the Lab's opening has been electric—students, parents, teachers, community members, and media (link) have been eager to explore the learning and brainstorming spaces, as well as interact with aviation materials and technology tools. We're excited for the students and educators who will participate in our science programs and camps, and for everyone who will use the space for special events, meetings, birthday parties, and other small gatherings.

But the Lab is more than just a facility. It's a tribute to the innovative spirit of NAHF Enshrinee Joe Clark, who invented a wingtip device that enhances aircraft performance, saving billions of gallons of fuel and reducing aviation's carbon footprint. Clark set a new standard for what's possible in aerospace, and we believe that every student who enters the Lab will be inspired to do the same.

Dance into the night

Try your hand (or should we say feet) at swing dancing on the dance floor. Back by popular demand in 2026 — enjoy live music from "Victory Canteen," A Tribute to the Glenn Miller Army Air Force Band, performed by the Tom Daugherty Orchestra. Expect toe-tapping tunes and timeless romance.

A Valentine's date like no other

Explore themed aircraft and get a rare look at artifacts from the Museum's collection not normally on display, plus selections from Wright State University Libraries Special Collections & Archives. There will also be a caricature artist, games, and trivia with prizes throughout the evening.

Sip, stroll, and celebrate

Enjoy food, cash bars, and cozy moments throughout the Museum. Kiss your Valentine under the wings of history or raise a glass with friends beside your favorite aircraft.

Tickets to Swing the Night Away are just $45 per person and support the nonprofit Air Force Museum Foundation. Event is for adults only, ages 21+.

Celebrate Valentine's Day with music, history, and swing—we'll save you a spot on the dance floor.

Lunch & Learn Lecture at Harmon Museum

Lunch with President Abraham Lincoln February 18 | 11:30am

Join us for an afternoon that transcends time. We are honored to welcome renowned historic presenter John Cooper as he inhabits the character of our 16th President, Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln's ties to the Miami Valley are deep; from his 1859 visit to Dayton, to his friendship with Lebanon's own Thomas Corwin, he viewed the region as the "garden spot of the world." Cooper will regale us with the wit, humility, and intellectual rigor that defined the Lincoln presidency.

Lincoln's presence reminds us of a time when leadership was measured by the "better angels of our nature" rather than the volume of one's grievances. Come witness a portrayal of an Executive who understood that the weight of the Union required a steady hand, a quiet mind, and faith in its people.

I have faith in the people. They will not consent to disunion. The danger is, they are misled. Let them know the truth, and the country is safe.
